Casa Noor

Marrakech, Morocco · prepared by Wail Ben Hamida · 31 October 2026

PART ONE

What AI sees today

WHEN A TRAVELER ASKS AI ABOUT CASA NOOR

> ChatGPT describes Casa Noor as "a charming riad with cozy rooms and a rooftop terrace in the medina", the same sentence it uses for dozens of riads nearby. Perplexity lists it fourth among "boutique riads", without a reason to choose it.
> Google AI Overview mentions the rooftop, but not the courtyard, the lanterns, or the owner, the three things guests praise most in their reviews.

YOUR WEBSITE, READ BY A MACHINE

signals an AI assistant needs to understand and recommend a place

- ✓ Page title
- ✓ Meta description
- ✗ Business schema (Hotel / LocalBusiness)
- ✗ Address in schema
- ✓ Phone in schema
- ✗ Opening hours / check-in times
- ✗ Links to other profiles (sameAs)
- ✗ FAQ on the page
- ✓ Enough words to describe the place

WHAT A THOUSAND PLACES COULD ALSO SAY

~~charming riad~~ ~~cozy rooms~~

~~heart of the medina~~ ~~stunning rooftop~~

~~friendly staff~~ ~~unforgettable experience~~

These words are true of almost everyone, so neither guests nor AI can tell you apart. Page two is what only you can say.

PART TWO · THE STORY NO ONE SEES

“Every evening at sunset, Noor lights the courtyard lanterns one by one. By the time you return, the house is glowing, and it is glowing for you.”

Forty-one of your last sixty reviews mention the evening courtyard or Noor by name. Not one line of your website does.

PART THREE

Three fixes you can make today

01 Open your homepage with the lantern ritual, in one sentence, before any list of amenities.

02 Add a short FAQ: "Is there a quiet, atmospheric riad in the medina?" answered with the courtyard, the lanterns and Noor.

03 Use the same one-line description on Google, Booking and Instagram, so every AI assistant reads the same story.
